

Mine Cinar is a specialist in development economics, game theory and finance. She holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Robert College (now Bogaziçi University, Istanbul, Turkey), a Master of Arts degree in Economics from Vanderbilt University and a doctorate from Texas A and M University. She is a professor of Economics at the Quinlan School of Business at Loyola University Chicago and is Director of the Center for International Business. Mrs Cinar is the ex-President of Middle East Economic Association (MEEA) and is the main editor and publisher of the online proceedings journal of MEEA, Topics in Middle East and North African Economies at <http://meeasites.luc.edu/>

MINE CINAR

